

ABSTRACT

Type checking between an object class and a target class may comprise getting an object header from an object, and checking from the object header a result of a first time type checking between a class of the object and a target class
5 specified by a hotspot in the first time type checking.